

Sharing worries

as well as the good things that have happened during the day together as a family can help to validate and normalise feelings.

Spending time together to list worries and work through them one at a time enables us to organise thoughts and feel more in control.

Allowing your child to share their ideas on what will help them, will make success more likely and builds their independence.

5 TIPS FOR FAMILIES

Making a 'worst case scenario' plan together can help everyone to acknowledge challenges and feel supported with how to face them.

Work together with the education setting to make a plan for going back, trying to put some of the child's suggestions into place so that they feel heard and valued.

.... thinking about going back to school for children and young people with anxiety ...

